[music fading in]

I: Welcome to our latest interview, where we dive deep into the heart of passion, speed, and the thrilling world of automotive love. Today, we have a special guest, Idil Tufekcioglu.

I: How are you?

G: I'm good, And you?

I: I'm good as well, Alright let's start to our questions;

MAIN POINTS

[classic music continues]

I: What sparked your passion for Cars?

G: My passion for cars was ignited by the Pixar movie "Cars." The iconic opening scene, where Lightning McQueen quotes, "Speed, I am speed. Faster than fast. Quicker than quick." not only introduced me to the art of pushing the limits but also the feeling of becoming one with a car. And till this day I am still obsessed with the movie.

I: How did your early experiences with cars shape your interests?

G: When I was a kid, while my friends were playing with dolls, I was busy with cars. My first battery car, which I would drive from day till night. By the age of ten I got to experience sitting behind the real steering wheel, guided by my father, deeply influenced me.

I: Can you tell us about the transition from playing with cars to engaging in horse riding?

G: I started horse riding when I was twelve. It was a metaphorical step for learning to control one horsepower before I could master hundreds. Riding taught me balance, control, and the thrill of speed, skills that paralleled the dynamics of driving a car.

I: How did Formula One racing become a significant interest for you?

G: During the quarantine I stumbled upon the exciting world of Formula One racing. This encounter was not just a simple distraction but a discovery of a passion within me. The histories behind the teams, the drivers pushing to the limits and dedication to win has mesmerised me. Following the teams and drivers, understanding their dedication and the thrill of victory, expanded my love for speed and competition.

CONCLUSION/OUTRO

I: Thank you so much for this interview, I loved hearing from you!
